Chasten, Chastise, &c.

The writer, who gives his "Thoughts on Education" in the ADVERTISEE, should be clearer in his statements, or somewhat less confident. Was it "a thoughtless error " of Webster to make chasten and chastise synonymous? "To chastise," he says, " means to make chaste to make pure." Will he please inform us what writer used it with this meaning? He asserts that "chastise is an expression of the Old Testament, used only before the gospel of Christ was better understood." But it is used in the New Testament, as is also the corresponding noan. Now there are two Hebrew words, each of which is sometimes rendered chasten, and sometimes, chastise, and besides this meaning, one of them, according to the connection means to ex- It is also true that if anything in the way of hort, to admonish, to instruct; and the other means to comfort, to reprove, to judge between parties The writer says that "To chastise brings to view of the present rate of destruction of the one's mind the idea that an offender became chaste or purified as soon as the law was conciliated; [sic] as soon as the eye for eye,' and ' tooth for tooth' was taken, the excommunication was withdrawn," &c. Is there not some confusion of thought here? What has excommunication to do imperative one. Could the community be with chastisement? Had the monks who submit- assured to-morrow that there was in the valley ted their backs to flagellation been excommunica ted? When X. speaks of "an expression of the Old Testament, used only before the gospel of Christ was better understood," does be refer to less apprehensive of danger by night or day, the original, or to the translation? If to the trans and insurance agents would be less chary of lation, what evidence does he adduce that the gos- taking risks and cease hinting about increasing pel of Christ is better understood now, than when the translation was made? And is "the word school such a scarecrow to children, that they go only because they are compelled by their parents?" Now it seems to me that this is nothing less than a slander upon our teachers; and if they do not resent it, it will be because they consider it unworthy of notice.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 11.

late the country upon the signs that our people are awakening from their lethargy to grasp with energetic hands and hopeful hearts the advantages which nature so profusely holds out to them. In this Centennial year of America, some of her sons in these isles of the sea, under the inspiriting effects of reciprocity with the father-land are up and doing; and we are pleased to note their adoption of the co-operative policy in agriculture, urged and advocated by us years ago as the only one calculated to make Hawaii rich and prosperous. On Maui and Hawaii we learn that a number of energetic and enterprising men of small means are engaged in planting and cultivating each for himself an amount of land-from a dozen acres up to a hundred, of cane-to be ground by the owners of neighboring mills for a share of the product. This is our ne plus ultra method of developing the resources of the country, the sure and substantial corner-stone of the people's prosperity. It is peace and concord between capital and labor, each reaping its own substantial reward, contentedly working together,-no strikes, no revolts, no dissatisfaction to disturb the harmony of operations carried on by the joint efforts of capital and labor. By such enterprises, the stability and independence of government and the advancement of the country in prosperity is assured. Ten or a dozen homes of industry, competency and content will spring up under the merly but one, or perhaps none was to be found And in its gradual development it will send the schoolmaster more abroad, introduce habits of labor, industry and thrift among the native population, extend the area of employment for skilled mechanics, and be the means of attracting a valuable foreign immigration into the country-other than Chinese. In fact this system, rightly carried out, is beyond question the best mode of developing the resources of a country; and we hope to see within the next few years, hundreds of small sugar and rice farms springing up all over the islands, whereby the

THE PUBLIC are informed through the medium of the Hawaiian Gazette, that the Board of Immigration has decided to invite the immigration of Portuguese from the Western Islands, and that arrangements have been made to bring such im . migrants, for a stipulated sum per person, on whaleships on the way from New Bedford to the country may rapidly advance in population and

While we would heartily welcome a large immigration of the industrious and orderly Portuguese with their families, to settle here permanently, and will do all in our power to second any proper efforts made to bring them hither, yet we must say at the outset that we anticipate no very favorable results from the plan as stated by our contemporary. Any scheme of immigra tion from the islands in question-or indeed anywhere else-in order to be successful must be conducted through a duly authorized and accredited agent of this government, residing for the time at least at the point of embarcation, and who must be fully able and ready to give all requisite information to intending immigrants. The plan proposed of bringing out families in whaleships, we regard as decidedly objectionable, and should recommend in preference the merchant ships that every year to the number of four or five come out to these Islands from Europe and the United States, and which might be induced to call at the Western Islands. A whaleship is certainly not a desirable place for women and children, when we consider the sort of men that in these days go to make up the crews of such ships; moreover, a whaler does not often make the passage direct, but oftener cruises for whales, the trying out of which when caught covers the ship from stem to stern with grease and filth.

But aside from questions pertaining to the matter of passages, let us ask, what disposition it is proposed to make of the immigrants after their arrival? Some few may possibly be possessed of sufficient capital to be at once able to purchase homes, but the majority it may reasonably be expected will be without any means of support beyond strong bodies and willing hands. Has the Board of Immigration the control of vacant agricultural lands, on which to locate farmers and their families, giving them time to carn and pay the price of an allotment? Or will they be fed and housed at the expense of the Board until they can find employment? Or will they be expected to engage at once as contract laborers on plantations? Let us not be construed as suggesting obstacles for the sake of fault-finding; we are simply presenting a few considerations that must inevitably arise whenever we undertake to procure immigration from civilized countries. Much has been written and more said about the need of an increased water supply for the city of Honolulu. Everybody feels that the need is a pressing one, and the only question to be decided-as to how the need is to be met -is in the hands of the government. We have had a number of articles from time to time in the papers respecting the beneficial effects which would ensue in the way of conserving the rain fall, were the valley of Nunanu to be replanted with trees, and the weight of public opinion, based upon the experience of other countries and the general testimony of scientists, is decidedly in favor of a system of forest planting as a means of securing the continuance of our water supply. But however firmly we may believe in the theory,-and there are many who think that the idea that trees make rain fall is not supported by sufficient data,-it must be conceded that the experiment will require years of labor and the expenditure of considerable sums of money before we can hope to see any results. planting forests is to be done, it should be commenced with as little delay as possible, in woods. And yet the trite proverb that delays are dangerous comes home to us with double force when we remember that our need of an increased water supply is an immediate and a reserve of several millions of water that could be made immediately available in the emergency of a fire, no doubt the public mind would be rates. A speedy increase of the water supply is therefore what the city needs most of all, and this cannot be obtained by replanting the forest, -however desirable we may admit that to be,but by the construction of new water works in the valley, to secure and retain for use the rain posal of the government in the shape of the appropriation by the late Legislature of $25,000 for "water supply of Honolulu." The question therefore before Ministers is this—shall the public money be used in the experiment replanting the forest of Nauanu, with a possible result in from ten to twenty years; or shall it be expended in the construction of new water works, that within a year's time will place Honolulu beyond the fear of destruction by fire? To our minds, every consideration of sound policy demands the adoption of the latter plan. Let us look at figures for a moment. land at the head of the valley which it would be necessary for government to acquire previous to abolishing the famous "cow pasture," is held under a lease baying ten years to run, from the Commissioners of Crown lands, at a rental of $350 per annum, besides an additional rent to the government of $125 per annum. It is anderstood that the owner of the lease will sell for $12,000. The cost to government would

Total cost to government.....$27,500 We have no data at hand for reckoning the cost of planting trees, but will suppose it to be $1500 per annum, for ten years,-anybody is at liberty to estimate it lower if they choosewhich added to the above would make a total of $42,500 expended, before we might expect any result from tree planting. Besides, it must be remembered that the land in question comprises only about one half of the land of the upper valley which it would be necessary to purchase in order to thoroughly carry out the scheme.

On the other hand, we are assured by a competent authority that a dyke or dam of mason work can be constructed on the stream at or near the former country house of Kamehameha influences of the co-operative system where for- III., about two and a half miles above the present reservoir, at a cost of not exceeding $15,000, capable of containing say five million gallons, and that the work could be completed within six months. We are informed moreover that responsible parties are prepared to contract for the performance of the work at the price named, or an approximation thereto. An additional necessary expense would be the 12 inch metal piping to connect with the present reservoir, estimated to cost under $4,000. So that it appears the needed supply of water can be secured within the next twelve months, and for a cost below the appropriation which the government has at its disposal for that purpose.

Another branch of this subject, which must be met and disposed of sooner or later, is that of private water rights in the valley. As the city grows in extent and population the entire stream of the upper valley will be required for the supply, and a legislative grant will be needed to buy out private rights in the water.

KAPIOLANI PARK ASSOCIATION.

On Wednesday there was a meeting of persons interested in establishing the Kapiolani Park and Fair Ground, at the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce. It was quite a success. His Majesty honored the occasion with His attendance and the room was quite full. The Association was organized by the choice of officers and an Executive Committee was chosen, which committee was instructed to prepare the draft of a charter, which it was resolved should be applied for. This enterprise should commend itself to the whole public. His Majesty has given the use of three hundred acres of crown land near Diamond Head and on the beach for thirty years, which, it will be remembered, is the extent of lease which the Crown Commissioners are enabled to give under the Statute. The land is most beautifully situated, is very fertile and capable of ornamentation with artificial ponds, &c. One would be surprised to see what the expenditure of a very small sum of money under the direction of Mr. Herbert,-who is the originator of the scheme and has displayed in this and in numerous other instances since he has been among us, his public spirit-has already effected. The present scheme is to assign to subscribers two hundred shares in all at fifty dollars per share, to be called for by assessments as may become necessary. The amount of the first assessment, as we understand will be decided upon at the next meeting of the Association. There will be two hundred lots laid out on or near the beach to be drawn for by subscribers, so that each one will get a lot upon which he may erect a cottage. There is a racecourse of a measured mile marked out on the plain, and it is proposed to make an artificial pond there. Water is abundant upon the place. It is likewise proposed to make a road striking the main road near the Kamoiliili Church, so that the drive will extend out by King Street or Beretania Street to the Park and home by the beach. Thus it will be seen that the enterprise not only proposes a great public benefit, but likewise will be remunerative to the subscribers; for we do not doubt that every one of the original subscribers will be able to sell the lot which he may draw for more than fifty dollars, and that in less than a year's time, those who may draw beach lots will command a very high price for them. On Thursday subscriptions were being made briskly, and we even heard propositions made to increase the price of shares and limit the number, but the originator and early supporters of the enterprise were unwilling to resort to that plan at present, being desirous of making the enterprise a popular one, and giving as many as possible an interest in the Park.

The following are the officers of the Association chosen at the meeting on Wednesday last : President.....James Makee, Esq Committee on Charter—Hon. H. A. P. Carter, His Ex. Jno. O. Dominis, Gilbert Waller and J. H. Paty, Esqs.

LONDON MISSIONARY SOCIETY .- At the annual meeting at the North Australian Auxiliary of the London Society, the annual meport of the Secretary. contained the following paragraph:

Our missions in the South Seas are quietly prospering. The older missions have been growing strong, and a numerous and well-instructed native agency is available for the evangelization of the groups of islands which are still entirely heathen. These heathen groups are clustered along the west-ern portion of the Pacific Ocean. And while the society has set itself to the great work of evangelising New Guinea and the islands at its eastern end, it is a matter of great satisfaction to the directors that the societies which have shared the work in the Pacific with themselves are extending in the same direction; the Melansian Mission will visit the Banks and Solomon Islands; the Wesleyan missionaries will occupy New Britain and New Ireland: while the Presbyterians enlarge their work in the New Hebrides; and the Hawalian Church evangelise the Marquesas and Micronesia. Under God's blessing, the successful accomplishment of this noble scheme will not only save these manly races from extinction, but will bring to them enlightenment, safety, and comfort, and will secure for them an honorable place in the Christian history of the world.

In 1852 the English Parliament voted, for education, art and science, an appropriation of $2,358,-810. This year the amount was $16,390,195.
